TOOLE AND SIMS REEVES.

Toole and Sims Reeves (writing Joseph Hutton in the 'People') were very intimate friends. The comedian tells a story of how he met Reeves in a train on the way to Liverpool and asked him to teach him the notes of 'The Spoken Word', a comic song that had a vogue for a long time. Reeves took the request seriously, and it was his last meeting with him. The comedian told him how he was in the city he was passing through. The comedian called, and was informed that Mr. Reeves was in the garden. Toole saw him sitting in a shady corner reading a newspaper; he knew him at once by his black and curly hair. Toole crept behind him, and sat down in a chair. He related to him a very pathetic incident of his last meeting with Reeves. Reeves took no notice. Toole laughed to himself, and stood apart, feeling, perhaps, that Reeves wanted to finish his reading, or desired to encourage him. Then the comedian went for the 'Spoken Word' again, this time trying a full version of 'Come into the garden, Maud.' Reeves got up and took another seat. Toole gave him a taste of 'Tom Bowling,' whereupon Reeves turned upon him to inquire what the devil he meant. It was not Reeves at all.

Toole has returned to his house in Maiden Vale, London, still deeply saddened with his long illness, and unable to speak much longer than in a whisper. He related to me a very pathetic incident of his last meeting with Reeves. Reeves took no notice. Toole laughed to himself, and stood apart, feeling, perhaps, that Reeves wanted to finish his reading, or desired to encourage him. Then the comedian went for the 'Spoken Word' again, this time trying a full version of 'Come into the garden, Maud.' Reeves got up and took another seat. Toole gave him a taste of 'Tom Bowling,' whereupon Reeves turned upon him to inquire what the devil he meant. It was not Reeves at all.

IN CRIMINAL SESSIONS.
(Before His Hon. Sir John Carrington,
Kt., C.M.G., Chief Justice.)
FEBRUARY 18, 1901.

THE YAMUATI MURDER.

The Attorney General (The Hon. W. Meigh Goodman, K.C.) said with reference to the charge of murder against Ho Shand Wong Fung Chau that he wished his Lordship to fix a date for trial. His learned friend, Mr Robinson, appeared for the defence. He thought, therefore, that Thursday should be fixed, otherwise they might not be able to get through before Saturday night. There were 16 witnesses on behalf of the Crown.

His Lordship—Very well, say Thursday at 10 o'clock.

Wong Mo was charged, again, on 10th January, being a member of an unlawful society, to wit, the Triad Society.

He pleaded not guilty, and the following gentlemen were called as the jury:

Mr. J. H. Thompson, H. Arnold, C. G. Hermann, J. J. Gutierrez, M. de Silva Gamaral, Maxwell Watson and P. E. Silva.

The Attorney General said that on the morning of the 11th January, Ltano Sergeant Burchell was cruising about the harbor on police duty, searching for arms and maintaining the law when he came across boat No. 2, which was in the water. He went aboard, and did not find any arms, but he saw some of the police on board while he searched the boat. He observed that the prisoner did not seem very willing to come. He then searched the boat and found a sawed barrel. He noticed that the prisoner seemed afraid and shifted his belt round on his body. He suspected that something was wrong, and took the belt from him. On looking into the pouch, he found a pistol or dipstick of a police society, which he passed on to the Police Station prisoner kept there. At the Police Station prisoner stated that he picked the piece of cloth or paper from the street.

After evidence the prisoner was found guilty and His Lordship judge gave him four months' imprisonment with hard labour.

London, Feb. 1.—Benedito the German Dragon Guards, a detachment of German Hussars, of which the Prince of Wales is the nominal possessor, attended the Queen's funeral.

The whole of yesterday [ill] late at night the work of erecting countless stands and draying houses along the route was proceeding.

The Japanese battleship Hikasa has arrived in the Solent to take part in the ceremonies.

The demand for seats to view the funeral procession is very keen, and uncovered seats are fetching six to seven pence each, whilst windows are fetching over one hundred pounds. An immense number of wreaths will be suspended from the front of the procession.

London, February 2, 9:30 a.m.—The morning opened dry, but with threatening rain and snow. A force of constabulary assembled last night to guard the routes of the funeral was gathering. The morning trains are crowded and all are making for Hyde Park.—Troops have been arriving all night.

The crowds on the northern shore of the Solent are estimated at half a million, which exceeded the throngs assembled on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee.

Buildings, stands and boardings along the firmed route to London are being rapidly erected. Inscriptions are being painted up at points.

The Duchess of York returned to Osborne immediately after the coffin was embarked.

London, February 1, 10:25 p.m.—The coffin, covered with the coronation robes and surmounted by the Crown, orb, and sceptre, the gems of which glittered in the brilliant sunlight, was borne at 10:25 p.m. drawn by eight horses and driven by artillerymen. Immediately behind walked the King and the Emperor William, both in the uniform of the German Emperor, as other Princes and then nine Royal ladies headed by the Queen in deep black, heavily veiled, walked in threes.

The coffin was carried on board the Albatross and placed in a catafalque under a rich and velvet pavilion upon the sides so as to be visible from afar. Eight torpedo-destroyers piloted the Royal Yacht

FOR SWATOW, AMOY & TAMSU

At the Magistry to-day, K. W. Mounsey, No. 2 Goolistan, Conduit Road, was charged at the instance of J. Ross, owner, Hongkong Water Works, with having, on 13th inst., altered the water service. He pleaded not guilty?

Mr Ross said that, on the date in question, he visited No. 2 Goolistan, and found a copper pipe leading to a heating apparatus in the back room.

Once-examined by Mr Mounsey, witness said he had been to the house on two occasions. "The first time I was there was about a fortnight before the 13th." The water authority was the Director of Public Works who had a subord in name Mr Hollingsworth. It was Mr Hollingsworth that witness took his directions from. Defendant had had great difficulty before he got water at all. Mr Ormsby and Mr Hollingsworth were considerably annoyed about the matter. Witness never saw Mr Ormsby, but was annoyed because he (witness) had addressed the Colonial Secretary. He was told that water rates had been remitted to the defendant. The pipe was of an inch in diameter and the T piece was connected to the main pipe by a copper pipe which let the water flow direct to the bath. On the T piece there was a stopcock which, when turned on, allowed the water to flow on to the heater. If both stopcocks were turned on, the water would come into the copper pipe. Witness remiend not know why the defendant was not told that the pipe was there. He did not know if it was used to give people water before they were summoned.

Mr Mounsey asked if they were put into the house by the Government. Witness said he had personally nothing to do with them. He bought the water heater, and fixed it up by his own expence before he was called into the house. The Government knew perfectly well that the heater was there, as it had been there for two or three months. The pipe that connected with the heater was the same as the pipe that could be easily got at, and it was that connected with the main pipe in any way. The water service had not been extended in any way, and it was absolutely absurd to construe it this way.

Mr Ormsby (Mr Hazland)—The question is whether you altered the pipe.

Mr Mounsey—No, I have not altered

THE Company's Steamship

given you notice at any rate.

Mr Mooney—The whole point is as to the residents in this road here. I am against it for such and the Worcester Public Works has been decided against it, either because he had no power or no inclination to remedy matters, that a declaration, I presume, has gone to this most intelligent department of the every householder in that road who is worried by no such thing as possible worship—My sympathies are entirely with you, Mr Mooney, and I shall inflict any penalty. I must say I am without doubts as to this question of all the service pipe, but the water authorities should have given you notice. summons is dismissed.

The tenant of the next house, No. 10, Mr Mooney was, on pleading guilty, to a similar charge, fined the nominal penalty of 5s.
